a generally acknowledged characteristic of modern life namely the temporalization of experience inextricable from our intensified experience of contingency and

difference has until now remained largely outside psychology's purview wherever questions about the development structure and function of the concept of time have been posed for example by piaget and other founders of genetic structuralism they have been concerned predominantly with concepts of physical chronometrical time and related concepts e.g. velocity all the contributions to the present volume attempt to close this gap a larger number are especially interested in the narration of stories overviews of the relevant literature as well as empirical case studies appear alongside theoretical and methodological reflections most contributions refer to specifically historical phenomena and meaning constructions some touch on the subjects of biographical memory and biographical constructions of reality of all the various affinities between the contributions collected here the most important is their consistent attention to issues of the constitution and representation of temporal experience based on the assumption that reality reference and representation work together this introductory textbook explains and illustrates the various ways in which historians write the past as history for the first time the full range of leading narrative theorists such as paul ricoeur hayden white frank ankersmit seymour chatman and gérard genette have been brought together to explain the narrative making choices all author historians make when creating historical explanations combining theory with practice alun munslow expands the boundaries of the discipline and charts a new role for unconventional historical forms and modes of expression clear but comprehensive this is an ideal resource for undergraduate and postgraduate students taking courses on history and theory history and method and historiography this is the first collection of international scholarship on the fiction of amitav ghosh ghosh's work is read by a wide audience and is well regarded by general readers critics and scholars throughout the world born in india ghosh has lived in india the united kingdom and the united states his work spans genres from contemporary realism to historical fiction to science fiction but has consistently dealt with the dislocations violence and meetings of peoples and cultures engendered by colonialism the essays in this volume analyze ghosh's novels in ways that yield new insights into concepts central to postcolonial and transnational studies making important intertextual connections and foregrounding links to prevailing theoretical and speculative scholarship the work's introduction argues that irony is central to ghosh's vision and discusses the importance of the concepts of testimony and history to ghosh's narratives an invaluable interview with amitav ghosh discusses individual works and the author's overall philosophy the secret of the process by which consciousness invests history with meaning resides in the content of the form in the way our narrative capacities transform the present into a fulfillment of a past from which we would wish to have descended writing the barbarian past examines the presentation of the non roman pre christian past in latin and vernacular historical narratives composed between c. 550 and c. 1000 the gothic histories of jordanes and isidore of seville the fredegar chronicle the liber historiae francorum paul the deacon's historia langobardorum waltharius and Beowulf it also examines the evidence for an oral vernacular tradition of historical narrative in this period in this book Shami Ghosh analyses the relative significance granted to the Roman and non-Roman inheritances in narratives of the distant past and what the use of this past reveals about the historical consciousness of early medieval elites and demonstrates that for them cultural identity was conceived of in less binary terms than in most modern scholarship

The author aims to show through a series of case studies of Derrida and others that postmodern ways of thinking signal the end of history history especially when taken in either of two forms the metanarrative on the one hand and the professional academic form on the other introd
